Their ship of life has come to anchor in a harbor yet 18 unchartered and still unknown. We, who remain here, do not 19 know the waters but we do know the course to steer. We 20 know that our beloved departed members have found the 21 harbor of peace. Human life is like a ship at sea in that none 22 is perfect. In our struggle to obtain a billet with the Great 23 Commander, we must set our course by the beacons given 24 us, offering kindness to all on our course through life. As the 25 years roll on, one by one, we end our cruise. The anchor is 26 dropped, to rise from the waters no more. Our heads are 27 bowed in sorrow for the loss of our members. We have 28 placed these flowers of remembrance on our Altar. This |
